Parenting my 6-9 year old

As your children enters middle childhood, their world opens up. They become more independent and start branching out from their family. They still need you to guide them through different situations.

We'll cover practical strategies which are effective and research-based.

- Explore your child's development (body and brain) and how to support their growth and set realistic expectations
- Discover your parenting style and what your child's temperament is, then identify strategies to help support you in your parenting journey
- Identify how you can build courage, responsibility, and self-esteem in your developing child
- Connect with other parents and learn how to address real parenting issues and ways to prevent problems, and address risks
